

Questions to help us think about the people.

1. What do the people in this poem say?
2. What do the people in this poem do?
3. What do the people in this poem think?
4. How do the people in this poem feel?
5. Do the people in this poem have a problem? If they do, are they able to solve it?
6. How do they solve it, or why can't they?
7. Do the people change in this poem or across the book? How do you know?
8. What do you think the characters learned about themselves and the world in the poem(s)?
9. What did you learn because you paid close attention to the people in the poem(s)?

The people in the poem are _____.
(Who are the characters?)

The people in the poem say _____.
(What do they say?)

The people in the poem _____.
(What do they do?)

The people in the poem think _____.
(What do they think?)

The people in the poem feel _____.
(What do they feel?)