

A)

1. Cultural diffusion is how an ethnic group's culture and traditions effects that region that they live in.
2. The building is an example of sequent occupance because it used to be a synagogue, meaning there was a Jewish population, but now its a church and the new population that moved in are baptist.
3. Relocation diffusion is when you move to a different region and bring your culture along with you.
4. First bronzeville was a Jewish population, and they brought synagogues and many other cultural traits, but they moved to Northern Illinois, and African Americans began to move in bringing their own cultural traits such as jazz & blues music, catholic ^{black} churches, & etc.
5. The building became a Baptist church instead of another religious structure because the people that were moving into bronzeville were mostly Black Baptists.
